

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF PSYCHOLOGY AND NEUROSCIENCE

Some words to IJPJN Authors and Readers

If the truth, but also and especially the lie came until our days, they will obviously have a role in human relations. It is also true that at certain moments the lie can be tempting to resolve or mitigate many aspects of our lives. So I, Humberto Mendes Faria Rodrigues, Editor-in-Chief of the International Journal of Psychology and Neuroscience, come thus assume all responsibilities for the slight delay of this IJPJN number.

As I said earlier, it would be easier to recourse to lies to justify many human behaviors, however, the ethical and "relationship between people and other living beings" is something that this journal will never abdicate, even if the "same" attitude can be an obstacle in other plans. Thus, to our readers and authors, I feel the need to clarify that the delay in the edition of the IJPJN number was due to health problems, and others associated with the development and growth of any project, which triggered a personal disorganization process and led to the delay, and were our Authors and Readers the victims of this situation.

Finally, I appreciate the understanding and availability from our Authors and consequently from our Readers.

With the conviction that we will do everything in order that it does not happen again, I express my personal sincere apologies and assumption of all the responsibility in the above-mentioned issue.

With great respect and consideration, I hope this IJPJN edition provide you knowledge, intellectual pleasure moments and personal enrichment.

Sincerely,

Humberto Rodrigues | Editor-in-Chief of International Journal of Psychology and Neuroscience.
